

CLOSING NOTICE
EFFECTIVE MAY 4

Board of Health Will Not Permit
Public Gatherings After 8 O'clock
Friday Morning.

ONE NEW CASE OF SMALLPOX

Change in Original Order Decided Upon to Get Epidemic Under Control at Once.

At a meeting of the board of health this morning a decision was reached to make the closing notice against all public gatherings effective beginning at 8 o'clock Friday morning, May 4, and an order signed by the members of the board reads as follows:

"In view of the fact that one new case of smallpox and several new foci of contagion have been discovered in the city, the Board of Health has moved up the date for closing public meeting places to take effect on and after 8 o'clock a. m., May 4, 1917.

"All persons affected by this order are hereby notified to govern themselves accordingly.

"J. K. Ritter, President,
"M. F. Gerrish, Secretary,
"Frank Bush, Treasurer."

The order was promulgated following the report of the discovery of one new case of smallpox within the last twelve hours. The patient is Harry Hoover, St. Louis avenue. The board of health also believes that other persons have been exposed to the disease and is of the opinion that the best means of combating the epidemic is to prohibit large numbers of people from meeting together until the epidemic is under control. The board has moved up the effective day of the closing notice as the most advisable means of eliminating smallpox from the city at the earliest possible time.

Subsequent to the issuance of the original closing order, the board explained that all public places were requested to close during the week, and if they did not see their way clear to close during that time the order became imperative on Sunday morning. Since that time, however, the board has decided that an earlier closing order is necessitated to meet the conditions here.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS WANT MORE GROUND FOR GARDENS

A. E. Murphy, Supervisor of Agriculture, Says Plots Aggregating
Ten Acres Can be Used.

The members of the agricultural class of the high school, full of energy and determination to help their country, have planted gardens on all the available ground and have now sent out a call for more space. A. E. Murphy, supervisor of the department, said that five acres more could be used easily and that ten acres would be highly acceptable if the plots were well distributed in various parts of the city. It is believed that owners of vacant lots in the city and of land close to the city will respond to the call and that the desired ground will be furnished. The Boy Scouts are planning to raise a large quantity of beans and can them under the supervision of the boys and girls clubs for distribution to needy families next winter.

RECRUITING OFFICER FOR THE NAVY IS WORKING HERE

C. W. Harvey, Boatswain Mate, Receives Many Inquiries From Local Men About Service.

C. W. Harvey, boatswain's mate, first class, is spending the week here in the recruiting service for the navy. Clarence Banister was the first to recruit in the navy during the present campaign and was sent to Indianapolis Wednesday. His home is in North Vernon. Harvey says that Indiana has already obtained its quota of men for the first call and ranked second in the standing of states in the Union. He expects to receive a number of men before he leaves Saturday.

ROUSING MEETING
HELD AT SAUERS

Flag Raising Features Patriotic
Demonstration in Oldest German Settlement in County.

A. H. AHLBRAND PRESIDES

Addresses Given by T. H. Honan, A. H. Kasting, the Rev. E. H. Eggers and County Agent Cobb.

The largest patriotic demonstration that has been arranged in any rural community in Jackson county during the present national crisis was held Wednesday night at Sauers the oldest German settlement in the county. It is estimated that at least one thousand people were in attendance, Seymour being well represented in the crowd. More than one hundred automobiles packed the parking space around the Sauers church building and the highways leading to the church.

Patriotism ran high and the demonstration was one of the most enthusiastic that has been held anywhere in the county. Patriotic music was played by the Seymour Concert Band and the Dudleytown Band. The Crothersville drum corps was present and stirred the crowd with its martial airs. The demonstration was arranged by the school at Sauers and was held in front of the building. As the local band played the "Star Spangled Banner," H. A. Wente, teacher in the Sauers German Lutheran school, raised the big flag to the top of a pole which had been placed near the entrance of the school building. Before the flag reached the top the crowd was cheering and hats were waving through the air.

A. H. Ahlbrand, of this city, was master of ceremonies and after briefly outlining the purpose of the demonstration introduced A. H. Kasting. He emphasized the seriousness of the war and said that the people of that community will very likely be called upon to shoulder arms in defense of the nation and to champion the rights which this country is demanding for all peoples of the world. He said that the German population in the United States had contributed 700,000 soldiers to the Union army during the Civil War, that they had always been true and loyal to their government and would be loyal and patriotic in the present crisis. He said that the American people had hoped that it would never be necessary for this country to enter the world war, but now that the decision has been made for the United States to bear arms there was no further discussion and that it is the duty of Americans to aid the government in whatever way it can.

Mr. Honan delivered a stirring address in which he complimented the people of the community upon their demonstration. He was cheered when he asked "Wonder what the kaiser would think of this demonstration?" and answered the question by stating that the kaiser would find a united American people all intent upon serving their government for the successful prosecution of the war and the establishment of the rights which it has proclaimed and championed. Mr. Honan said that the brilliant history of the American Republic had been written by its soldiers and fighting forces. He referred to the achievements of the American armies and navies from the time the Republic was founded until the present day and recalled that this country had never engaged in a war for territorial expansion or for glory and fame, but had gone into conflict for the establishment of the rights of the people.

County Agent Cobb told how the people on the farms could help win the war and urged them to give agricultural pursuits more attention than ever before. "The mobilization of the agricultural army is just as important as the mobilization of the fighting forces," Mr. Cobb declared "and you farmers have a duty in this crisis."

The Rev. Mr. Eggers delivered a splendid address in which he explained why the German population of the country is loyal to the government.

MANY FOODS ARE SOLD BY WEIGHT

Public Notified by State Food Commissioner That New Law is Now Effective.

LETTERS TO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Vegetables, Cereals, Dried Fruits Included in List Sold by Weight or Numerical Count.

Dr. H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, is instructing housekeepers throughout Indiana, through women's clubs, and grocers by bulletins, of the requirements of the law passed by last legislature providing that many foods shall be sold by weight instead of measure.

Food commissioner has sent letters to all women's clubs in the state, asking that they be read at a general meeting of the club, telling women of advantages of the law and asking them to do their part in helping enforce it by trading only with grocers who obey its provisions and reporting any continued violation of the law to authorities.

Among articles which must be sold by weight or numerical count after the law becomes effective, are: fruits, dried fruits, vegetables, cereals, seeds, nuts, ice, coal, coke, lime, salt, sugar, butter, lard, meats, candy and "other articles usually sold by weight."

The law exempts apples sold by the standard United States barrel, or by standard box, and cranberries sold by the barrel and farm products sold from house to house by the producer. Other exemptions are fresh vegetables, customarily sold by the bunch, such as young onions, radishes, celery or fresh berries.

INTERSTATE RE-EQUIPPING PASSENGER CAR SERVICE

Refinished Steel Covered Passenger Car was Run to Seymour This Morning for Inspection.

Officials of the Interstate Public Service Company were in Seymour this morning with a newly refinished passenger car which has been remodeled and brought up to a high standard. The car is steel covered throughout and has been equipped with a standard M. C. B. coupler so that it can be attached to a steam train as well as interurban cars; has automatic air for trailer. The seats in the smoker have been newly upholstered with leather instead of cane as heretofore. A voltage regulator which absorbs any drop in the current has been installed, insuring continuous and steady light in the car. This light now comes through frosted glass globes instead of clear glass as heretofore. A new headlight with 250 watt lamp replaces the old one.

This is in line with the policy of the Interstate Company to keep bringing their equipment up to a higher standard each year. Officials who were here were W. B. Page, Superintendent; L. M. Brown, Trainmaster; H. H. Buckham, Master Mechanic; N. S. Anderson, Engineer of Way and Structure.

PRIZES AWARDED IN H. S.
STORY AND POEM CONTESTS

Manuscripts Given Awards Will Appear in Annual Edition of Patriot.

The $5.00 prize, for the best short story written for the 1917 "Patriot," the annual, of the Shields high school was awarded to Miss Agnes Andrews, and the $5.00 prize for the best poem was divided between Miss Helen Barnes and Miss Veva Paul. The second prize in the short story contest, a prize of $2.50, was given to Francis Stunkle. The contest was open to all members of the Senior high school and the unusual feature was the fact that the winner of the short story contest was a member of the Freshman class. The subject of the winning story was "How the Legend Came True", a plot based on a Russian peasant tale. The subject of the second prize story was "A Session of the Centerville Civic Club." The poem written by Miss Barnes was a sonnet called "Inspiration" and the one written by Miss Paul is entitled "Dusk." Because of the quality of the two poems and the difference in the style of writing, it was decided by the judges to divide the prize equally between the two contestants.

The prizes are offered by the members of the Patriot staff in order that the best material in stories and poems may be obtained from the high school students, to appear in the Patriot. All of the classes entered the contest and many of the stories submitted to the judges, although they were not among the winners, will appear in the publication of the school paper.

SOCIALIST TO HEAD THE CONSTITUTIONAL COMMITTEE

Philip Scheidemann Appointed as President of Important Body of German Reichstag.

By United Press.
Amsterdam, May 3—The German government has taken the revolutionary and unprecedented step of appointing a socialist as president of the constitutional committee of the reichstag, according to Berlin dispatches today. Philip Scheidemann whose recent efforts were backed by government aid to obtain a separate peace between Russia and Germany through conferences with socialists, was selected for this important post. Observers of German affairs here regard it as particularly significant that a socialist should be named as the head of a committee that will have to deal with franchise privileges. His appointment may also be evidence of a desire for surrender of autocratic control.

AMERICAN GETTING ALL FACTS OF WAR

British Developments Are Published in Full With Exception of Reports on Submarines.

FIGURES TO BE COMPILED SOON

Lord Northcliffe Insists That War Can Not be Won by U-boats Although Shipping is Big Problem.

(By Ed L. Keen, Copyright 1917 by United Press)

London, May 3—America is getting the full and complete facts of every news feature of the British war developments, except the actual figures of submarine losses and may expect to receive them very soon. The submarine menace is the strongest card Germany has played, but it will never win the war.

The foregoing is on the authority of the man whose prophecies and statements of the war have come to carry more weight than those of any other figure in the allied countries—Lord Northcliffe.

"In regard to the loss of tonnage by submarines," said Lord Northcliffe, "there is no doubt but that the figures are serious. The government will, I believe, very soon publish the full facts and figures, as soon as they can arrange the matter with our French and Italian allies.

"I do not hesitate to say in my newspapers that the submarine is the greatest difficulty we have had to contend with so far, but to predict that the war can be won by the submarine is preposterous."

HOOVER SAYS DEATHS IN BELGIUM HAVE INCREASED

Babies Are Given Plenty to Eat But Older People Are the Real Sufferers, He Declares.

By United Press.

New York, May 3—Submarine destruction has steadily been increasing for six weeks. The situation is one of extreme seriousness. With this warning Herbert C. Hoover, who may be America's food dictator, arrived today from England. He declared that deaths in the industrial districts of Belgium have been tripled on account of recent submarine operations. Hoover said the U-boats were the one big menace which must be eliminated to win the war.

"What England needs most is wheat, but it also must have beef and pork products," he said. "We landed only 60,000 tons of food in Belgium during March and April. Death greatly increased. Babies are cared for first. They do not die. It was the old people who suffered. The relief commission has only thirty vessels, but it should have seventy to feed the Belgians alone."

HOSPITAL FORCES
NEEDED IN FRANCE

United States will Send 3,000 Ambulances and 7,700 Doctors and Drivers at Once.

FIRST TO LEAVE SHORTLY

Decision Reached at Conference of Representatives of Council of National Defense.

By United Press.
Washington, May 3.—The United States will send 3,000 ambulances and 7,700 doctors and drivers to France, the council of national defense announced today. The first ambulances and military men will leave within three weeks. This is in addition to the 1,000 medical men which will be sent at once to Great Britain.

The French commission has requested that 200 American doctors be sent over each month for an indefinite period.

Representatives of forty-eight states were told this afternoon that the success of the country in war depended upon their aid, at the meeting of the council of national defense. Organization of each state to sustain its troops and co-operation with other states was discussed in detail. Representatives were told that in the field of food production the states must bear the greatest burden.

Each state was urged to organize a state council of defense for direct co-operation with the national council and for interstate work. State committees on finance, publicity, medicine, food supplies and conservation were also advised.

As the house stood and cheered, Marshal Joffre vice-premier Viviani and other members of the French commission today completed their official visits. The house demonstration was a riot. Pacifists lead the demonstration when the party entered the door keeper announced: "The honorable French commission to the United States."

When Joffre and Viviani ascended the speakers' platform hand-clapping changed to stamping and desk pounding and cheers. Viviani made a stirring address.

Other Messages From American Consul of Liverpool Told of Further Destruction.

By United Press.

Washington, May 3—The torpedoing of the American vessel Willard, Abrahams off the Irish coast and the rescue of her crew of six was reported to the state department today.

Other messages said the American sailing ship Margaret has been set on fire by a submarine. A third cablegram reported the landing of thirty-three survivors of the torpedoed American ship Rockingham.

The American consul at Liverpool reported four members of the American gun crew on the torpedoed Vacuum as lost or missing.

ROSES

Planting the Lawn and Border.
Prepared by the U. S. department of agriculture.

THE chief consideration in the planting plan for roses for landscape effects is that the plants should be so spaced that when they reach maturity they will come together without overcrowding. The habits of growth of the particular varieties chosen will be the determining factor. The spacing should in general range from two to six feet. Early spring planting is best in the extreme northern part of the United States and on the western plains, where there are strong, drying winds in winter. In other regions fall planting is advantageous, but not sufficient so to warrant postponing planting from spring until autumn. When possible, however, it is well enough to push planting in the fall rather than to wait until spring. Spring planting should be done as soon as the ground is dry enough to work or when it springs apart after being squeezed in the hand. Fall planting is best done as soon as the leaves have fallen from trees and bushes.

Hints For the Home Garden.

The Republican is conducting this column with the cooperation of the National Emergency Food Garden Commission to inspire the planting of more food gardens throughout the country. Members of the commission are, Charles Lathrop Pack, president of American Forestry Association; Luther Burbank, Dr. Charles W. Elliot, Prof. Irving Fisher, John Hays Hammond, Fairfax Harrison, Myron T. Herrick, Dr. John Grier Hibben, Emerson McMillin, A. W. Shaw, Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture; Capt. J. B. White, U. S. Shipping Board; James Wilson, former secretary of agriculture. You should watch this column every day. Any questions should be written on one side of the paper and sent to the Garden Editor of the Republican.

Swiss Chard.

Chard, or Swiss chard, to give its whole name, is an evolution of the beet. It runs to top instead of the root, and thus it often called the silver beet and the spinach beet. It is used only for greens and possesses some of the good points of spinach, cabbage, best greens, and kale, says today's garden lesson from the National Emergency Food Garden Commission, which is cooperating with this paper to encourage the planting of many new home gardens as a war measure.

Chard can seldom be brought in any market. Yet those who have a taste for greens in the summer, when spinach and other greens are scarce, should surely plant it in their gardens, as it is one of the best of the greens plants, and a summer producer. It makes a sure fine crop even in the hands of beginners and against adverse weather conditions. Most gardeners who have raised it are enthusiastic about it.

It is another main crop, or whole season crop, that does not fit in with any second for second crops in the same season. It must be planted in the spring, but it begins producing its nature leaves in the early summer and continues to give them to its grower until frost comes. It is a beautiful plant with large, light-green wrinkled leaves supported by broad, white stems growing directly out of the root crown. The white, branched root is not eaten.

Plant 2 ounces of chard seed to 199 feet of row, having the row, 18 inches apart. When the plants are well up thin them out so that they stand about 6 inches apart. The immature plants thus pulled can be used for greens.

When the crop is ready for use you can either cut the oldest leaves on each plant, leaving the young ones to grow, or you can cut off the entire top, taking care not to injure the root crown where the leaves sprout, and the plant will continue to produce. The thick stalks of the leaves can be cooked and served like asparagus.

LOCAL LEADERSHIP

Somebody Must Take the Initiative—
Are You Willing to Serve?

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
Many agricultural plans are like a sky rocket. They make a fuss going up and blow up a few stars and descend like the stick. The reason of this is because few men can make a continued effort. They will get up a little scheme but at the first discouragement, their energy wanes and there is nothing to show for their activity.

Yet, it cannot be said that this sort of energy is wasted. Like the overlapping waves of a tide, public opinion is being formed. Things which were ignored when crop improvement began its propaganda, are now adopted as a matter of course.

Local leadership is the weakest spot in this work. Somebody must take the initiative but it is not necessary that one man should undertake the whole thing. In every community there are bankers, commercial clubs, farmers' clubs, granges, institutes, millers, grain dealers and public leaders of various kinds who can unite their efforts on a few specific things and after successfully tackling one problem be strengthened to tackle others.

PREVENTING RUST AND SMUTS.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
Barley is comparatively free from diseases and insect enemies. It is, however, affected with rust and smut, but not to the extent that oats are usually affected. Little has been done regarding the prevention of rust, but considerable has been done in the eradication of smuts. Ordinary smut can be handled with the formaldehyde treatment the same as oats, but the loose smut is hard to eradicate unless the modified hot water treatment is used. This is a delicate proposition and should be done carefully. Place the barley in gunny sacks and submerge in cold water from seven to twelve hours. Remove and drain for one hour, then submerge for five minutes in a barrel of hot water, held at a constant temperature of 130 degrees Fahrenheit. The water ought to be thoroughly warmed before putting in the barley because it will cool off the water. Boiling water should be kept near at hand which can be added at intervals which will keep the temperature nearly constant, but should never be allowed to come into direct contact with the grain as its vitality will be injured or destroyed. Be careful that your thermometer is correct. You ought to get yours tested at the creamery or the cheese factory.

After this treatment the grain should be spread upon the barn floor to cool before sowing. It should be sown the same day or not later than the day after treatment, for if you don't look out it will swell and start to sprout and it will be hard to get it through the seeder.

In the treatment for smut, formaldehyde is the most desirable as it is easiest to handle. Smut is not so very bad in barley this year, which is fortunate because if you wish to make a profit on a crop you can put it in after all other crops are planted, except corn and potatoes.

CORN ROOT WORM

200,000,000 Bu. Lost to Corn Crop Annually by This Pest.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
The damage done to corn in the corn belt is estimated to be 200,000,000 bushels annually. In our mad scramble to get corn into the ground this year, we do not want to overlook this tremendous waste. Next to poor seed corn, the corn root worm is the greatest source of loss to corn. The remedy is the rotation of crops. Never grow more than two crops of corn consecutively on the same ground. If you had corn root worm bad last year and it is too late to put in anything else, you had better change to barley. Your seedsmen can still furnish you with some excellent seed barley. If you do put in corn on that land, be careful to give your land more than a usual preparation. The time is late and we will have to bend every energy to plant our corn crop.

THE VALUE OF BARLEY.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
In the United States and Canada, barley is used as a feed for farm animals, less than one-third being used for malting. A limited amount is used in the preparation of breakfast cereals and for pearled barley. "Our farmers are learning the value of barley as a part ration for dairy cattle and young stock and much more will be used as animal food in the future," says Professor R. A. Moore, the greatest barley breeder in the world.

In many states barley is quite generally grown as a hay and feed for horses. When used as a hay it is cut in the milk stage shortly after heading and cured like timothy and blue grass. We think that the hay phase of barley this year is very important because all acreage that has never been planted to other crops or that will need replanting for any reason, could be put into barley at a clear profit.

When the grain is used as a feed, it is either fed whole or the kernels crushed by passing between rollers. If finely ground the gluten therein makes a sticky mass as soon as it is brought in contact with moisture and it is not then readily masticated or digested. Only a limited amount of barley is exported from the United States and the export consists largely of a mixture of varieties as feed.

"Dry Farming" Needed Everywhere.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
When we say "dry farming" we immediately begin to think of the western plains where the rainfall is deficient. We all admit that they should take unusual pains in conserving their moisture.

We all ought to be ashamed of ourselves in the humid territory. When comes along a year like this, we think we are terribly abused and yet in any of this territory we have had more rain than Western Kansas and Nebraska gets any year.

Therefore, let us take dry farming methods to ourselves. Because in some years the rain comes when we want it, is no excuse for neglecting conservation of moisture.

What is this dry farming? Let us take it up with the clubs and make it an institute subject. Let us get our best farmers to agree to practice it. There is no drought year in the corn belt which does not have more moisture than necessary, if conserved, to raise a crop of corn.

POWER ENOUGH

Work Your Tractors Night and Day and Plow Every Acre.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
Many farmers will not be able to put in their whole acreage on account of the lack of horses or other power. Every tractor in this county should work night and day as long as there remains an acre unplowed. There is still time to put in barley, and corn and potatoes, all three of which are worth almost their weight in gold. We appeal to every tractor owner to offer its services to any man who will not be able to get his soil prepared otherwise.

BARLEY NOT A HUMAN FOOD

As a Bread Cereal It is Little Used.
As an Animal Food It is of Great Value.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
For many centuries barley, the "corn" of holy writ, was used as a bread cereal, but it has practically gone out of use, except that Norway and Sweden use it in their peculiar bread disks, which are about the size and shape of a phonograph record. Barley in itself does not make a good bread flour and could be utilized only by mixing it with wheat, something which the American miller considers desecration of his shrine. It has a peculiar flavor and is just as different from wheat bread, as either corn or rye.

But as a stock feed, it has many merits. As the kernels are too hard for some animals to relish, it may be crushed by passing it between rollers.

If finely ground, the gluten makes a sticky mass as soon as it is wet, and this peculiar property makes it difficult to make it into good bread. Its main use in the American kitchen has been to use it as pearled barley in soups. It is used some in breakfast food, through a malting process, but unless we as American people are on the verge of starvation, we will never use barley as a regular diet.

OUR PLATFORM.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
The four fundamentals following are being taught where grain is a factor: First.—Establishment of one variety of each kind of seed best adapted to soil and climate.

Second.—The fanning and grading to obtain a uniform seed, free from trash, immature grain and weed seeds.

Third.—treatment of grain diseases by use of formaldehyde, etc.

Fourth.—Testing for vitality of all seeds with the assistance of the school children of the community.

WHISKERS ON BARLEY.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
Considerable complaint has been made in the past on account of the obnoxious character of the beards of barley during harvesting and subsequent handling. This objection has been largely removed since the introduction of the binder, self feeder attachments to threshing machines and self straw stackers. There is little danger in using the straw for feeding or bedding for stock.

MONEY IN BARLEY.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
Those who have been disappointed in getting spring wheat seed are able to still make an even more profitable crop by putting in barley. The Wisconsin Experiment Station with headquarters at the University in charge of R. A. Moore, can furnish on telegram orders pedigreed barley by ex-

MORE BEANS.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
A farmer in Hubbard Co., Minn., planted twenty acres of beans from which he received 377 bushels, selling them in the field for $1,185. This is not the highest record.
The Michigan men and the Colorado men and, in fact, all states are turning to beans with a great deal of success. There are three main principles to be observed in the control of weeds. They are: first, preventing the weeds from going to seed on the farm; second, preventing the weed seeds being brought to the farm, and third, in the case of perennials, starving out the underground parts by preventing them from making top growth.

VALUE OF STRAW.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
Don't burn that straw stack. You might just as well burn up dollar bills. In addition to returning actual fertilizing elements to the soil, it adds a large quantity of immensely valuable humus, if carefully spread over the fields.

AMOUNT OF SEED CORN.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
From twelve to fifteen ears of seed corn are required to plant an acre. All corn should be germinated right now in order to test its vitality and you should throw out every weak ear you can find. It will not pay you to plant poor corn this year.

CORN CULTIVATION

In Periods of Drought Any Cultivated Crop Can Be Greatly Benefited by Continued Cultivation.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
It is a debated question whether or not the mulch conserves moisture but a shallow cultivation surely does kill the weeds and any farmer who is energetic enough to kill the weeds will get the best crops. There is still time to plant barley ahead of you: corn. Don't allow an acre to lay vacant this year.

74% of All Advertised Food Products Are Newspaper Advertised

—Courtesy "Profitable Advertising."

According to figures compiled by a leading directory there were 1,450 food products advertised by name or brand in 1916.

This total does not include wines or liquors.

Seventy-four per cent., or about 1,075, of the 1,450 products were in whole or part advertised in the daily newspapers.

Most of the makers of food products who dominate their fields expended the greater part of their appropriations in newspaper advertising.

A few among these leaders spent virtually all their advertising money in newspapers.

Look through the store windows and note how frequently the leading advertised brands appear. The dealer is pushing them because the newspaper advertising is making a demand.

These newspaper advertised goods bring desirable customers to the retail dealer's store.

He knows that in backing up the manufacturer's advertising he is building business for himself.

Do manufacturers understand how newspaper advertising builds business both for manufacturer and for retailer? The $20,000,000 increase in general newspaper advertising in 1916 over 1915 is the best answer.

SUGGESTIONS ARE GIVEN TO GROCERS

State Food and Drug Commissioner
Issues Bulletin Concerning Food Supply.

DEALERS CAN HELP IN CRISIS
Asked to Encourage More General
Use of Nutritious Staple Groceries.

In a bulletin sent out to grocers in Indiana, H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, gives suggestions relative to the conservation and mobilization of the food supply, from the grocers' standpoint. A direct attack on the eating of high-priced candies and arguments that plain sugar should be constituted for this food, are made in the bulletin, which follows:

"To the Grocers of Indiana: The splendid response to the call for unusual efforts by farmers in the planting of larger acreage, and the cultivation of home gardens, will, if the growing season is favorable, give us good crops of some staples. But the surplus is so low and demand so great that even an increased crop will not prevent scarce and high-priced food another year unless we conserve our present supply and prevent wastage of the coming crop.

"The grocer, who distributes most of the food supply, can help greatly in warding off a food crisis. To this end I make these suggestions:

"1. Encourage the use of staple groceries, especially the cereals, such as rolled oats, rice, cornmeal, hominy grits; macaroni; the legums, such as dried peas and beans; dried fruits, such as prunes and raisins; the sugars, including molasses and glucose. "These foods are both cheap and nutritious. They must be used in large quantities and instead of more costly and less nutritious foods.

"2. Stock and urge the sale of cooking oils and fats, instead of high priced butter. Corn oil, cotton seed oil, lard compounds, uncolored oleomargarine, beef suet, all are very high in food values, wholesome and good.

"3. Stock lightly with fancy groceries, such as condiments, preserves, dessert preparations, tinned biscuits, olive oils and prepared foods that can be bought in bulk and cooked at home.

"These foods furnish the least nourishment for their cost. Their use should be discouraged until the present crisis in the food supply is past.

"4. Stock lightly with imported products. Do not buy or sell sardines from Norway when domestic sardines are available at much lower prices; cease selling expensive imported cheese, olive oil and fancy fruits.

"5. Stop pushing the sale of high priced candies. There is more food in a pound of sugar than in a dollar box of candy. Confectionery is a luxury that both thrift and patriotism will deny us.

"6. During the present food shortage discourage over-buying of staples that will keep in the grocery as well as in the home. This is no time to speculate in foodstuffs.

"The grocer easily may change the buying habits of his customers and help them to choose wisely that they may feed their families better and more cheaply.

"Such a service will be most valuable, for it will give us increased efficiency and our allies a larger share of our food supply.

"I urge your patriotic co-operation in this crisis in the food situation. Your very truly,

"H. E. BARNARD,
"State Food and Drug Commissioner"

FARMERS AND DAIRYMEN URGED TO SAVE THE COWS

State Veterinarian Emphasizes Necessity of Conserving Milk and Meat Supply.

By United Press.
Indianapolis, May 3.—Save the cows!

This was the advice to Indiana farmers and dairymen today issued by State Veterinarian L. E. Northrup.

"The real conservation of our livestock supply must be from our breeding stock," he said. "One cow will produce more food by milking her to a reasonable dairy age than the meat produced by seventeen slaughtered steers, besides producing a calf each year.

Sheep will double their number, or more, each year with very little labor, on rough pasture; brood mares must be preserved in this country and not shipped out for war purposes, if we are to do farm work."

Food experts pointed out that one slaughtered cow will provide a year's meat ration for two soldiers while milk from one cow will supply an equivalent food value for 20 soldiers during a year. One cow averages production of 600 pounds of cheese, equivalent in food value to 1800 pounds of meat.

THE COAL SITUATION.

During the last few months coal prices soared to unprecedented heights and now with the close approach of summer, when the demand is reduced, we are given little encouragement of relief. During the winter the protests against the excessive prices were met with the explanation that there was a shortage of transportation facilities, and the public realizing the abnormal demands upon the railroads were compelled to accept the solution offered. Hope was entertained, however, that provisions would be made to remedy the situation before another winter. Usually coal prices are reduced the first of April but such reduction this year was not forthcoming.

The newly organized Indiana public service commission is giving its first attention to the coal situation and it is hoped that its efforts will be productive of good results. The commission has found that the supply of coal is just as large now as it was five years ago so the situation cannot be explained away on the grounds that the production at the mines has been reduced. It appears that the prevailing high charges are due largely, if not entirely, to the railroad conditions. The situation, therefore, is in the hands of the commission and this body owes a thorough investigation to the public.

The railroads have a duty to the public that must be fully met. Transportation lines are charged with the duty of providing sufficient freight car service to meet the demands of the shippers. This can be done. The public demands that this duty be met immediately to prevent a repetition of the situation which worked such a hardship on fuel consumers last winter. The public has faith in the new commission and in its ability to work out a plan to protect consumers.

The patriotic demonstration at Sauers Wednesday night was an inspiration to everyone who attended. The addresses rang with genuine loyalty and patriotism. The demonstration was a compliment to the people of that community. We believe it would be a splendid thing if such demonstrations could be held more frequently throughout the United States. We as Americans are prone to look upon the freedom and liberty we enjoy as an inalienable right rather than an inheritance and a privilege enjoyed by no other people in the world. It sometimes requires a national crisis to awaken us to the realization of what the flag really stands for—that it is an emblem of justice and opportunity—and that the privileges were won at the point of the sword. There can be no doubt but that the present war will be an inspiration to Americans to pay greater honor and tribute to our flag as the emblem of the greatest country of freedom in the world.

FINAL SUMMONS COMES TO WELL KNOWN RAILROAD MAN

Thomas E. Kreinhagen Passes Away After Long Illness—Funeral Friday.

After an extended illness of over two years, Thomas E. Kreinhagen died late Wednesday afternoon at his residence on West Second street. Death was due to cancer. About two years ago Mr. Kreinhagen was first afflicted with the trouble, and submitted to an operation, from which he recovered sufficiently to resume his work, but last August he was again forced to give up active work and ever since had been gradually growing weaker.

Mr. Kreinhagen had been in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co. for over fourteen years, during most of which time he was the ticket agent at the local station. He was a man of many sterling qualities, and was held in highest esteem by the B. & O. officials and by all who knew him. He was a member of the Central Christian church of this city. He was born Feb. 27, 1868, near Jonesville, making his age 49 years, 2 months and 5 days. He was united in marriage to Miss Luella Floyd, also of Jonesville, on Feb. 19, 1893. After living in Columbus a year they came to Seymour and Mr. Kreinhagen engaged in the grocery business on South Poplar street. After eight years he disposed of the business and entered the employ of the railway company, with whom he remained until his illness forced him to retire.

Surviving him are a widow, five children, Inez, Z. T., Kathryn, Hope, and Robert Lee, a brother, John Kreinhagen, of Magnolia Beach, Tex., and two sisters, Mrs. L. Prather of Independence, Kans., and Mrs. Bert Gore, of Jonesville.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house, conducted by the Rev. Z. T. Sweeney, of Columbus, assisted by Rev. F. P. Smith, pastor of the Central Christian church. Interment will be at Riverview cemetery.

SOCIAL EVENTS

INDIANA STUDY CLUB.

Mrs. Ethel Conner was hostess to the members of the Indiana Study Club, for the regular program meeting this afternoon at her home on West Seventh street. A different phase of the history of Mexico, was presented, not from the rather sordid accounts of a suppressed people, but from the brighter view of the natural resources of a wealthy land, and the subtle refinement of a half civilized race. For the roll call responses trees and plants of Mexico were named, and following a brief business meeting the program numbers were given.

The first was presented by Mrs. Olive Conner in an interesting account of "Mexico's Natural Resources." Mrs. Conner spoke of the conditions of the country and of the different varieties of plant life that are produced both in the mountain regions and in the lowlands. In the lowlands are vast acres of valuable forest lands where such woods as the mahogany and the rosewood trees are produced in abundance, proving an untold wealth to the people.

In the development of the talk a detailed account of the fruit growing regions was spoken of. Mexico has a great variety of fruit that compares with no other country in diversity, producing such fruits as the orange, the banana, pineapple, coconut and grapefruit. The banana growing, is an especially profitable industry as the banana plants are not killed with plant destroyers as many of the other fruit trees, and will produce from ten to twelve months after planting with an average for one acre alone being from 500 to 800 bunches annually.

Mrs. Conner also spoke of the mineral resources in Mexico, mentioning the oil mines, the silver mines and the valuable clay which is extensively used for pottery. The silver produced in Mexico totals more than one-fourth of that mined in the entire world, and supplies nearly all of the countries. The cattle raising, as an industry was also spoken of, showing how among certain of the Mexican states it has proved to be very profitable.

Concluding her talk Mrs. Conner told a delightful story of how a musician, wandering through Mexico, was haunted by the natural beauty of the country, and of the unconscious charm of the people. Realizing the value of the natural production of the land, and being vividly impressed by all of his surroundings, he composed "The New World Symphony" to express to the world his feeling of the beauty and charm of the land.

Following this, Mrs. Mayme Cox, outlined in a delightful way "A White Umbrella in Mexico" as pictured by F. Hopkinson Smith. The book is an account of the author's travels through Mexico and his impressions of the picturesque people among both the Aztec and the peon classes. He vividly describes the beauty of the country calling it a new Holy Land, and saying that it is an old, old story pictured in a new way.

The book is called by its rather unusual title because, the author, while traveling over the land, viewed all the beauty around him in the shade of a large white umbrella, as a protection from the severe Mexican sun. In the outline, also, was interestingly described the people, who through generations have been greatly suppressed and have had no opportunities of education. Regardless of this, however, they possess a keen refinement and are strangely intelligent. They are a mixture of Indian and the blood of the Romance countries, and in the book,

Concluding her talk, Mrs. Cox said, "Important changes are taking place and a happier future is predicted for Mexico. The ancient monasteries are being turned into printing presses, the great convents into public schools, and the churches into public libraries. The secluded convent gardens are now filled with the gay metropolis, and with a passing mention of all the history of Mexico, the outlook is brighter, at the present day than at any other time."

Most Eye Troubles

Are congenital; people were born with them. For these defects, there is just one relief—properly adjusted glasses. Nothing else can give even temporary relief.

When the eye ball is not perfectly formed—when it is too long or too short, the defects in refraction must be corrected by the proper lenses. We can diagnose any case of refractive error and determine the amount of that error. Then we can have the proper lenses ground to correct the error.

TEST BARLEY.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
All seed barley should be tested for vitality before sowing as the seed is quite frequently injured by heating in the stack or bin. If the seed is of low vitality and does not test 90 per cent it should be regarded as inferior and new seed should be purchased.

FARMING COMMUNITY QUESTION.

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
Far be it from us to urge the farmers to do anything more than they are already doing, but in case any of our farmers are prevented from planting their maximum acreage through the lack of money, labor, power or seeds, it is a public question and we ought to help them solve it immediately.

A Wrist Watch in the Desert.

One night a company of Arabs attached themselves to our party. This is customary in these wild lands. They saw that we were well armed and came with us for safety. One of them, a dignified young chief, was accompanying a woman across the desert. She was well dressed, this Arab girl, with a yellow turban and a silken robe. On her wrist she wore a Swiss gold watch, and, though bare-footed, she was as dignified as the queens of Lenox and Newport. One of my men apparently made an insulting remark to her, and she called him down just as an American girl would have done. According to the custom of the desert, we had to give him a thrashing, which Mahomet did lustily with a big stick. After that the Arab party always showed us white men the deepest respect.—Peter MacQueen in World Outlook.

The Clothes Moth

At this season of the year the tiny, yellowish moth which is seen occasionally flitting about the lamp at night is an indication to the housekeeper that clothes moths are beginning their work of destruction. In other words, egg laying by these little moths is now under way, and within a month in the latitude of the District of Columbia, later northward and earlier southward, the eating of woollens and furs by the tiny caterpillars coming from these eggs may be anticipated.

The moths which are thus attracted to the lamps at night or fly away from garments or portieres when these are handled do not themselves eat anything and could not eat if they wanted to, as they have not biting or chewing mouth parts. The destruction, as every housekeeper knows, is occasioned entirely by the tiny larvae working underneath scanty webs or in little cases made from particles of the garments on which they feed, webbed together by a whitish silk. The common clothes moth of this country is the webbing species, known as the webbing or southern clothes moth, and its presence on garments can be detected by this smoky or whitish web which is evidence even before the garments have been much eaten. If from these indications the larvae are discovered in time, the larvae and webs can be easily removed by a stiff brushing of the garments.

The protection of woollens, furs and feathers and like materials from the attacks of the larvae of these moths is secured only by constant vigilance and careful inspection and treatment.

As early as possible in the spring, all woollens, furs, etc., the use of which can be dispensed with, should be put away in safe storage for the summer. Before being packed away such articles should be thoroughly brushed and beaten and, if possible, exposed to the strong sunlight for several hours out of doors. The brushing is very important in order to remove the eggs or young larvae which may have escaped notice. Articles so cleaned and sunned should then be put away in moth-proof containers. Materials which cannot be thus put away should be given the same thorough cleaning and re-inspected during the summer, preferably every two weeks. In no case should such examinations be at intervals of greater than three weeks or a month.

Woolen clothing and furs, etc., may be packed away safely for the summer by enclosing them in several wrappings of paper or in well-made bags of cotton or linen or in paper sacks which can be tied or otherwise securely fastened, to prevent ingress of the moths. In these packages can be placed such repellents as tobacco dust, camphor, naphthalene cones or balls, and cedar chips, etc. The odors of these substances are disagreeable to the parent moths and act as a repellent, but they will not kill eggs or larvae which may be enclosed in the packages. Hence the necessity of the thoroughgoing cleaning and airing prior to packing away. The same precautions are needed with cedar chests and wardrobes.

The best means of protection from clothes moths and a method now available in all larger towns, are the refrigerating rooms provided for that purpose in practically all storage warehouses, and the adoption of this method of protection for all valuable garments or furs during the hot months is strongly recommended.

Articles in daily or weekly use, and apartments frequently aired and swept or used as living rooms, are not apt to be seriously attacked. There is a risk that under these conditions attached carpets may be eaten around the border where the insects are not so much disturbed by walking and sweeping, and particular attention should be given to the border areas. Loose rugs are much less apt to be injured, but it is a good plan during the summer, if these are allowed to remain on the floor, to turn them over and thoroughly sweep or brush the under surface once every two or three weeks.

Rugs or carpets put away for the summer should be first thoroughly cleaned on both sides and beaten and then wrapped up in tight rolls, protected by wrapping with tar paper. The additional covering or baling with burlap is not necessary except where the rolls or bales are to be transported or will require considerable handling.

blue Georgette. A Chinese medallion They are much like the long Directoire canes that have tried for so beads appear, two in front, two in back and one on each sleeve. A gir- die of the citron edged with blue is finished with a beaded tassel in the gold, black and blue.

This also comes in different color combinations but the citron and blue is more distinctive and Chinese.

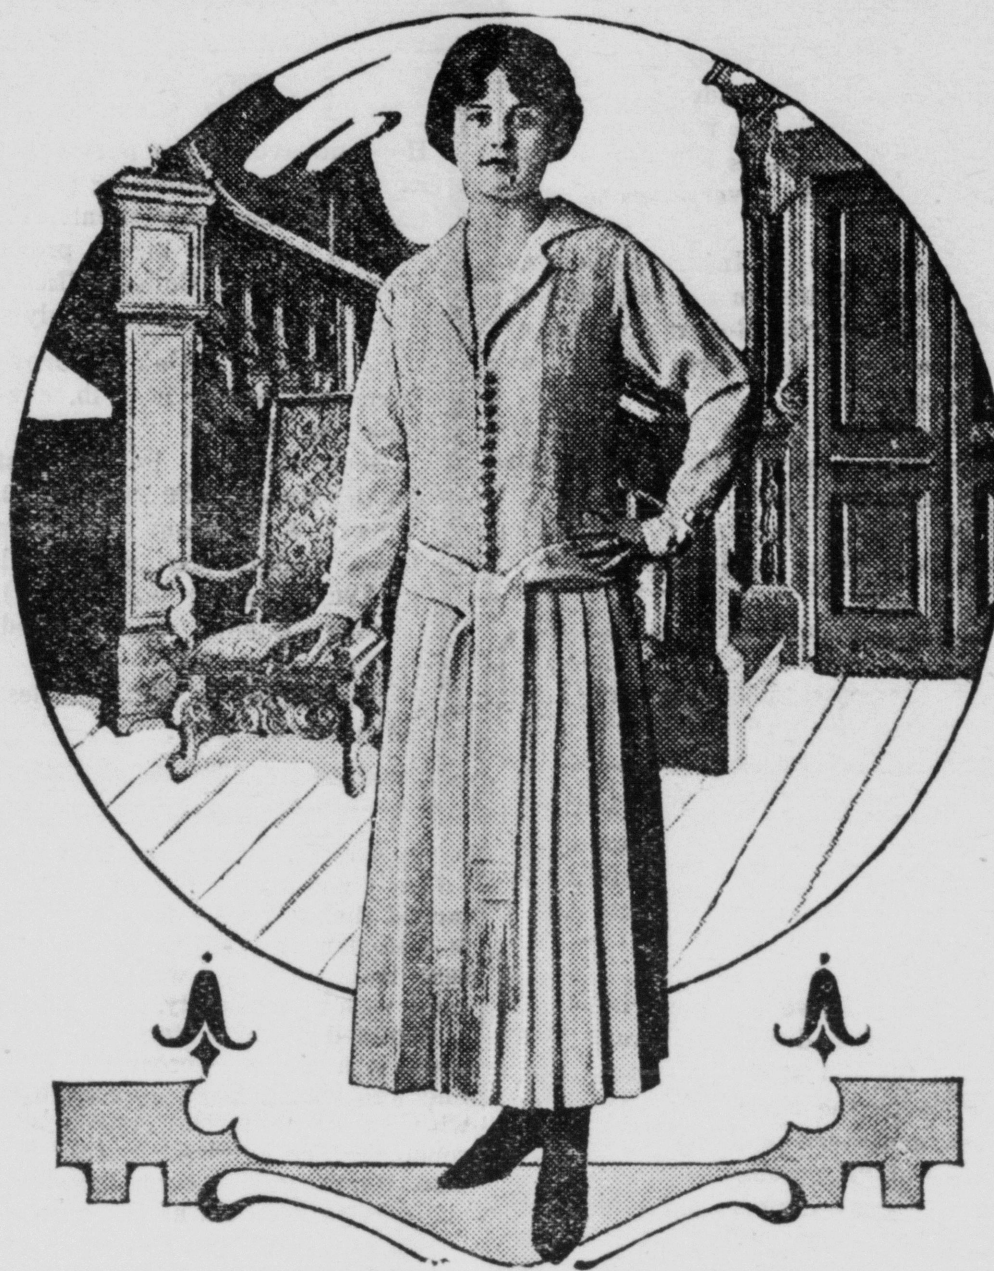

Flesh, color, white or gray Georgette make lovely slipover blouses and ones of embroidered net or voile are less expensive by half or more but not that less attractive by any means.

When walking out in your ribbon walking skirt and your slipover blouse, if you want to walk away with all the smartest sartorial honors you positively must carry one of the fetching new walking sticks.

They come enameled in any shade to match up or accentuate the color scheme of your costume. Some of them have gray cords and tassels tied around their knob tops and others more elaborate have coquettish bags of silk, beaded or gold lace trimmed, attached midway of their slender length.

I have no doubt that these fascinating sticks will stick this season and that soon no chic charmer can even step down to the corner drug-store for an ice cream soda without this newest staff of fashionable life to lean on.

Afternoon Frock For Mid-Summer

An oyster-white silk crepe, a pongee or "khaki-kool" or any of the new heavy weaves in silk, will make an afternoon gown like that shown in the picture that could not be excelled for simple elegance or refinement. The trend of fashion toward the straight silhouette has placed the seal of approval on plain straight hanging skirts, and on long bodices without definition at the waistline.

Beautiful accuracy in the plaits and in every other detail of the making of this gown, is essential, as in all simple designs. In this respect the home dressmaker must be faithful to the model if she undertakes to copy it; but a light wool or heavy cotton fabric may be used instead of silk, with good success. Small shepherd check, in black and white, decorated with black soutache braid will convert it into a street dress.

As pictured the dress is made of a heavy silk crepe and fastens at the front with white buttons, set close together, and loops of silk cord. Down each side of the bodice at the back and front a border design in soutache braid provides a decoration in perfect harmony with the dress. The design is widened at the shoulders to extend to the arm's-eye. The sleeves are long and without cuffs, but the braided pattern appears at the wrist and three buttons, matching those that fasten the dress, are set close together here. A narrow, flat sash of the material is finished at the end with a bit of handsome fringe. It is tacked to the dress and looped over at the front. The neck is managed with the same reserve that characterizes the entire design, having a narrow V-shaped opening, small revers, and cape collar at the back.

The Original Girl

"I'm giving a lot of my time these days," said the Original Girl, "to plan and make myself some mid-summer clothes. It takes so many things these days to really look right and they all cost so very much that I'm trying to economize and make them myself. Of course I'll not undertake everything but I have started out on blouses and I intend to put a lot of embroidery on all of them. It is used so very much this spring, and gives everything such a distinguished air that I wish to use all that I can of it."

"As a beginner, I am making this crepe blouse. See I'm working out a color scheme with these shades of amethyst and purple. I'm dreadfully tired of blouses in pinks and blues and this is something different. To relieve the monotony, you know," she added smilingly. "It doesn't seem possible for the modiste to create anything to take the place of the blouse so all that's left is to discover new ways of making them. I've made the blouse proper of the amethyst georgette with this odd pointed collar of the purple, and on the collar points I intend to put these tiny gold tassels." And she held up a tassel to show us the effect.

"To relieve the effect of all the purple shades I am working out a rather conventional design to be embroidered in gold. Not very much, you know, just a tiny touch, to give a Japanese tone. I may use a few gold beads worked in with the design, too, but I haven't fully decided on that. The woman who has charge of the shop where I bought the floss gave me the idea and she said that they weren't one bit hard to work in and she thought it would do beautifully with the combination I'm using."

"While we are talking about clothes, I'm going to tell you something else I have planned for my summer wardrobe. Regardless of what I said a few minutes ago about pink being rather overdone, I'm going to have a pink linen dress. Not one of those time worn shell pinks that have been in vogue forever, but a real deep shade bordering on the watermelon. I don't know just how I'll have it made but it must have a big floppy collar and big roomy pockets. They will be embroidered, too, in black and white, in a design of concentric circles with just a lot of French knots. I have an awfully vivid picture in my mind of how it will look, and I'm sure it will be really lovely. It'll wash well, too," she concluded, and will be mighty easy to make. I'll have the style very simple but will give it a "nifty" look with the addition of the hand work.

A Woman Who Has Succeeded

The American Magazine for May gives an interesting account of Anna Moscovitz, a woman lawyer at the New York bar, who has succeeded in the field of work she selected. She is a Russian emigrant who has made good, at least we think so when we learn that she has an income of $15,000 a year.

"I love to match my wits against men," she naively admits. "It is great fun, and I just love to beat them. You ought to see how foolish men feel when I win a case."

"One group of her opponents felt so foolish when they were defeated that they hired her. It was a labor union that she defeated in a case that had been pending for five years. Miss Moscovitz took it, and established her claim to recognition by winning for the first time in the United States a verdict against a labor union. Whereupon the union promptly hired her."

"Miss Moscovitz is also chairman of the Woman's Night Court Committee. In the early days of her practice, she would go to the night court and defend the unfortunates free of charge. She feels that great injustice has been done, and she is fighting for reform in the methods of the court."

"The office of this little woman lawyer is within a few blocks of that self-same harbor where twenty-five years ago she was brought to this country. Handicapped by the lack of means to obtain an education, facing obstacle after obstacle and overcoming all of them, Miss Moscovitz today has an income of more than fifteen thousand dollars a year."

"Her opponents are invariably over-polite, calling her 'my fair adversary' and our feminine opponent. At first they held her cheaply; but when Miss Moscovitz began to win cases after case, New York lawyers began to take more time in preparing their briefs."

"One distinguished lawyer walked up to her and said she had defeated him because he had thought so little of a woman lawyer that he had been a little careless with his case. She met him in court a few weeks later, and he came over and shook hands, and said, 'I'm ready this time.'"

"Witnesses, judges, attendants, in fact everyone connected with courts, looked at Miss Moscovitz with great curiosity at first. Witnesses would not talk to her, and one day a man walked up to her in court and said, 'Do men really give you cases to try?'"

"Sometimes," the little lady answered, smiling at the question.

"Do they pay you?"

"Sometimes," was again her rejoinder.

"Then they must be fools." And he walked away."

Stunning Sports Suits

Something very elegant in sports suits appears in the accompanying picture. Its skirt is made of a special weave in silks. The coat is of silk jersey and is a wonderful example of fine designing.

In this stunning model the most noteworthy feature is the quilted pattern in the coat, done with machine stitching. There are six rows of stitching about the bottom edge of this shapely model. The sleeves are widened at the wrist with deep cuffs, and the skirt is box plaited all round.

Margaret Mason's Fashion Letter

(Written for the United Press.)

With fickle and ingenious Fashion handling the ribbons the result is bound to be racy. Consequently the new "ribbonette" skirts are sure to win in a walk. To begin with the wonderful new ribbons are quite the most beautiful creations in the fabric field—to end with they are the same. Therefore if you use a width of Persian ribbon to begin a skirt as a yoke and another width of Persian ribbon to end it at the hem the answer is a bit of Persian perfection.

A pleated skirt of oyster white

Correctly Tailored

Materials of cotton, linen and silk are all aspirants for favor in tailored blouses with crepe de chine and cottons leading in point of popularity. Whichever you elect to use, if it is to be tailored, let it be strictly and severely tailored, because the element of style is increased by this means.

The blouse shown in the picture is of white silk with plain back, tucked fronts and long, plain sleeves having turned-back cuffs. It is worn with a mannish four-in-hand in gay colors and is "as right as rain."

tussor with a ten inch band of rose, blue, gold and green plaid ribbon around the hem doesn't force it's wearer to enunciate, "Ahem, Ahem" to attract attention.

A stunning skirt has perpendicular stripes of vivid Roman stripe ribbon, ten inch width alternating with plain emerald green ribbon of equal width. The effect of the plain toned ribbon of course accentuates the fact that the entire skirt is formed of ribbon lengths alone.

Gorgeously flowered ribbons alternating with the one toned stripes are as effective as the Roman striped ones and you are sure to go dotted over-a-white khaki-kool skirt with huge pockets, hem and girdle of cerise satin ribbon spotted with silver disks, big as dollars.

In many of the ribbon skirts the plain and fancy ribbons are used in alternating strips running around instead of up and down. These are forsooth for the willowy woman while the perpendicular strips bring joy to the portly persons who are short of stature and breath and long only on Embonpoint.

Another method of applying the wider twelve and fifteen inch fancy ribbons is as a panel in the front and back of the skirt with a width of pleated plain hued silk on the sides.

Though ribbon skirts are positively the most novel of all the new skirt conceits, a plain one which shows your true mettle is a glowing garment of lustrous silver cloth. These metallic skirts are wonderful worn with a slipover blouse of vivid tint, bright with vari-hued beadwork or embroidery.

Indeed the slipover or chemise blouses vie with the skirts for very gorgeousness. It is true some carping critics (mostly one's husband and his ilk) seem to look upon these new blouses as glorified dressing sacks. But wait till they get the bills and they will see the big difference.

One lovely chemise blouse smack-ing of a Chinese tendency is of citron colored Georgette bound around the low neck, loose bell sleeves and peplum with an inch band of Chinese

What Is Vaccination?

In as simple words as possible, avoiding medical terms and expressions which may not be familiar to all, I shall try to answer this question by request.

It is a well known fact that many ailments, measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever and many other diseases including smallpox occur but once in an individual. In some way one attack of the disease has so changed him that no amount of exposure to that disease will cause a second attack.

One attack of smallpox will prevent a second attack. It has been found that vaccination will also prevent it.

Vaccination consists in purposely making a single sore on the arm of the individual very like the many or even hundreds of sores he would have with smallpox. Vaccination protects him as completely, though not for so long a time, as an attack of smallpox would protect him.

As vaccinations are now done, it is a very simple matter and attended with but little discomfort and practically no danger. A small area not larger than a pea is scratched on the arm—not enough to even bleed. The pure clean vaccine is placed on this spot and is not even felt by the person vaccinated. The spot is then protected with a dressing and your vaccination is done.

In three or four days there comes a little pimple at the place. This acts about like a small boil would act and lasts about as long.

In countries where the law compels everyone to be vaccinated they do not have smallpox.

If everyone would be vaccinated here we would not have it. It will be difficult to get rid of it here unless vaccination is general. Will you do your part?
J. K. RITTER.

MARSHMALLOW WHIP

Whip one cup of cream, add one half cup of sliced pineapple, one-half cup diced banana, one sliced orange, one cup walnut meats and five cents worth of marshmallows. Mix, place on ice and serve when cold.

Mrs. Gorbett.

SCALLOPED APPLES

1-3 cup butter, 1 quart sliced apples, 1-3 cup sugar, grated rind and juice of 1/2 lemon and 1 loaf of stale bread. Cut loaf in half lengthwise, remove all the center, and rub until crumbs are fine. Melt butter, add crumbs, and stir with a fork. Spread the bottom of a buttered dish with the crumbs, and pour in half the apples that have been pared and cut in thin slices. Sprinkle with half the sugar and the lemon juice and rind. Repeat, using the remainder of the crumbs on top. Bake in a slow oven for forty minutes with dish covered for the first half hour. Serve with sugar and cream.

VELVET CHOCOLATE LOAF

2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup sour milk or buttermilk, 1/2 cup butter, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 eggs, 2 squares chocolate dissolved in 1/2 cup boiling water, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, pinch of salt.

Cream butter and sugar, add the beaten yolks of the eggs, dissolve the soda in a little hot water, add to the sour milk, turn into the egg mixture. Sift in the flour, add the melted chocolate, salt and vanilla. Lastly fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a moderate oven and cover with plain, white icing.

TOMATO JELLY SALAD.

A can of tomatoes and a slice of onions in same saucepan with one-half cup chopped celery, an even teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, bring to a boiling point and add half a box of gelatine that has been soaked half an hour in cup of cold water, strain, then add juice of one lemon and turn at once into molds or small cups. When ready to serve dip these quickly into boiling water and turn out in a bed of celery finely chopped, or lettuce leaves, with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

PRUNE PIE

1/2 pound prunes, 1 teaspoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1/2 cup of sugar and juice of half a lemon. Wash prunes in several waters, and cover with clear, cool water. Soak overnight. Cook in same water in which they have been soaked until tender. Remove the stones, chop fine, add the juice in which they were cooked, with the lemon juice and sugar. Add to a pie-tin lined and place on the top. Bake in moderate oven.

HOW THIS RUN-DOWN WOMAN

Got Strength to Do Her Work—Told by Herself.

Fair Haven, Vt.—"I was so nervous and run down that I could not do my housework for my little family of three. I had doctored for nearly two years without help. One day I read about Vinol, and thanks to it, my health has been restored so I am doing all my housework once more. I am telling all my friends what Vinol has done for me."—Mrs. James H. Eddy.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it is an unequalled tonic-body-builder, combining beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous tonics known to medicine. ## The Wanderer

Novelized by William A. Page

Biblical Drama of the Prodigal Son.

The mother half smiled through the tears she sought to hold back. "But art thou David?" she asked tenderly.

Jether, stung by the implied rebuke turned away from her sulkily. "Ask my father for my portion," he said tersely.

"Nay; that I shall not do," replied the mother firmly.

"What! Thou wouldst give all to my brother Gaal?"

"Each shall have his share when the proper time comes, Jether, yet did I know more of thy plans?"

"Then I will tell thee, mother!" cried the boy, coming to her and kneeling before her as he had done many times in the past. "I shall go in company with a great merchant whom I met at the inn near Hebron. What he sells I know not, and what he buys I know not. We conversed long on other things. Of one thing I do know, for he hath told me. In Jerusalem he hath houses and goods in plenty. There, too, he hath many friends of highest rank who for his sake will greet me as their friend."

The nameless terror gripped the heart of Huldah again.

"What knowest thou of him or of Jerusalem?" she queried anxiously.

"Of him? He is my friend," declared Jether, warming with enthusiasm at the prospect of the journey to the big city. "But of the city? Ah, mother, couldst thou but see as I see when from the distant hilltops I gaze upon the lights so far away to the north and dream of that upon which they shine—the many streets of the great city of Jerusalem, filled with palaces of gold and ivory, where dwell victorious captains and great merchant princes; the gates in the high city walls that open joyfully to stately caravans from Babylon and Nineveh and Egypt, places I know as yet only by name, but wonderful indeed, 'tis said, to look upon. I see the whole world as I stand there, one of the thousands at the city's gates, and hear the clamoring throng who would unload the camels' burdens, and as they bend, tinkling their silver bells, I would see their cargoes' wealth—embroidered purple robes, and wines that bring men golden visions, and swords for heroes mystically engraved. I see them all, mother."

In his enthusiasm the youth sprang to his feet as if already he would be upon his way toward the magic city.

"And, though none know my name as I stand there," continued Jether, as though entranced by the vision before him, "yet I am a part of all the great life of the city, and to my ears is borne the music of strange tongues, and my enraptured eyes behold the litter of some princess of great beauty, borne by her joyous slaves. And the mighty captains of thousands, will they not ride on milk white steeds while shining maidens strew flowers in their path? And I shall see it all—mother. Then while ye lie sleeping here in dreamless sleep, in the first watches of the night, there the joyous life begins, and everywhere are mirth and revelry and the soft whistles of lovers in their wooing. And all the air is perfumed with rare spices from Araby the Blest. And I shall be a part of all there is and feel the glow of the full rush of life, and then at last—ah, then, mother, then I shall live!"

Impulsively the lad dropped upon his knees and buried his head in his mother's lap, tears coming from sheer joy at the prospect before him. The mother stroked his head tenderly and spoke with unerring instinct.

"Most of all, Jether, I fear the women of the city."

Jether sprang to his feet in surprise. "Thou doth me wrong to think I seek for pleasure only, mother," he protested. "Do I not work? Then why not there? With such things calling me shall I stay here among these dreary hills watching the sheep that only know to eat, to drink, to die—seeing what they see, knowing little more, hating the morning, for it breeds the day, until I, too, shall die?"

"Things are not as our dreams tell us, my boy," Huldah came to the boy and put her arms around him affectionately. "To such as thee the city yieldeth but little, and from such much doth she take away. They who would conquer there must fix their gaze upon harder roads than thou dost choose. Thy lips are softly rounded. Would they were firmer. Thy hair is soft and curly. Would it were rough and strong, for I fear, Jether, I fear for thee in the great city."

Jether stubbornly turned from her. "Now that thou dost know, thou wilt get me my portion from my father?"

"Perhaps," Huldah smiled indulgently. "If thou wilt but wait, wait, until after tomorrow. Thou shalt not start forth in sin upon a holy day."

Jether averted his face and said sulkily: "Get me my portion or I go—without it."

Huldah clasped her hands nervously. The boy meant what he said. Then, poor lad, if he really meant to go, perhaps 'twere better that he did have money, else might he starve.

"Thou knowest thy father is both wise and just," she said softly. "I shall speak with him. Meanwhile, I beseech thee, Jether, prepare thyself in humble spirit for the evening meal."

But Jether once more averted his face and said grimly: "I shall stand here until thou dost return, unless thou stayest too long for my farewell."

The mother, shocked and pained by the unkind remark—hurt at the thought that the lad might even carry into effect his threat to depart without saying farewell—hurried within to acquaint the aged Jesse with the demands of their younger son. The boy Jether, freed from the restraint imposed upon him by the presence of his mother, ran to the top of the great rock which formed a natural elevation in the front of the house, and from there a better view of the countryside could be obtained. He whistled. From a small hollow amid the rocks came forth an answering whistle. The boy returned once more to the well, and in a few moments Tola joined him.

"'Tis well that thou didst call me when thou didst," spoke Tola roughly. "How long thinkest thou I am to wait for thee?"

"I must await my portion," replied Jether.

"Thy father holds a piece of silver long ere he throw it away," sneered Tola.

Jether faced him angrily. "What meanest thou?" he demanded.

But Tola, with a mocking laugh, turned away. "Nothing—nothing."

"My mother e'en now asks my share for me," continued Jether.

"Well, do thou make haste, boy, if thou wouldst go with me to Jerusalem," said Tola.

"But in a moment I will join thee. Await me near by, but out of sight, for my father may see thee," was the reply of Jether.

"Aye, 'twill give me no pleasure to gaze upon thy father's face. I will await thee behind yonder tree if thou dost not tarry too long."

And Tola quickly disappeared, none too soon, for already Jesse, staff in hand, was emerging from the house, followed by Huldah and the half frightened Naomi, dimly suspecting that something was wrong which concerned her beloved Jether.

"Mother wouldn't think of using any Baking Powder except Calumet! She's tried all others—she knows which is best—she knows Calumet means positive uniform results—purity in the can and purity in the baking—great economy and wholesome things to eat."

ROUSING MEETING IS HELD AT SAUERS

ernment. His reasons were confined largely to a Biblical exposition with quotations showing that it is the duty of every Christian to stand by his government in a time such as the present.

Mr. Eggers said: "Much has been said of late about the American of German descent. He has been suspected of being deficient in the true American spirit. His loyalty to his country has been doubted because, heretofore, his sympathies largely have been with the country in which his ancestors were born.

"It is not my intention to speak to you about the American-German in general, about his patriotism and loyalty. This meeting is held in a Lutheran community, this demonstration is given in front of a Lutheran parish school. I, therefore, consider it quite appropriate that I address you on the position taken by us Lutherans toward the government of our country.

"Christianity is a very practicable every day affair. A true Christian is a good citizen. Among Christians the very purest and finest patriotism is found. Why? Because his God demands of him that he be patriotic, that he be loyal to his country. The Bible clearly defines to him the course he is to pursue in his conduct toward the government of his country. Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path," these words of the psalmist also hold good relative to the Christian's duty as a citizen.

"Let me only refer to one very brief passage of scripture which alone will suffice to make our position clear. Romans 13, 1 we read: 'Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers.' In accordance with this divine command we teach and confess that it is the duty of every Christian to obey the government of his country. It is immaterial whether it is an absolute monarchy, with its power and functions centralized, or a democracy, with the legislative and administrative powers vested in the people, and by them periodically delegated to their representatives by suffrage.

"The question to settle is: Does the government exist? If so, then it is of God. The same passage from which I quoted before goes on to say: 'For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God.' Therefore, the government is entitled to the respect and conscientious co-operation and obedience of every Christian within its boundaries.

"Therefore, a conscientious Christian is careful to give honor to whom honor is due. He is ready to render honor to all civil authority. He is willing to honor the flag, the symbol of such authority, and not merely that, he is ready to defend that flag whenever necessary and to support his government.

"Every child in the Lutheran parish school is taught to render obedience to, and to comply with the laws of the civil authorities which are ordained of God. They are taught that they must do this not under compulsion, not from fear of wrath and punishment, but prompted by the dictates of conscience. Thus we see that the Christian's conscience is also in this matter directed solely by the will of God as revealed in His word.

"We are living in times of war. Every one must submit to the demands made by the time. No matter what his opinion may have been in the past the Christian will fulfill his duty as a citizen. Valiantly he struggled to keep his country out of this war. But since that moment in which congress declared the existence of a state of war he considers this as self-evident: What the representatives of the American citizens have decided is binding for the entire nation and for every individual. Consequently, as citizen, he knows but one duty, viz: to render obedience to the government that has power over him for the sake of God and for the sake of his conscience."

Southwest Mission.

The cottage meeting of the Southwest Mission will be held Friday at 7:30 p. m. at 306 West Fifth street, the second house west of the Shields high school on the north side of the street. After this meeting there can be no more until the ban of the health officers is lifted. Come. All are gladly welcomed.
